The image is a screenshot of a Google Map showing an aerial view of a city street intersection. A blue polygon is drawn on the map, highlighting a specific area. The area is located on the left side of the intersection, between a street running vertically and a street running horizontally. The area is mostly empty, with some small buildings and a few cars. The map shows a grid of streets with buildings on either side. The Google Map interface is visible, including the 'Untitled Map' title, a text box for a description, and the Google Earth logo in the bottom left corner.

A photograph showing a yellow and blue water meter in the foreground. Behind the meter is a concrete wall, and further back are several buildings, including a large yellow one and a white one. The sky is blue with some clouds. A silver SUV is parked on the left, and a white car is on the right.
